Minimize programming time and automate your daily transaction-based email and fax communications through Odyssey's Web Services Gateway.

The need to programmatically connect a business process application with an electronic messaging platform is quite common. Odyssey allows you to streamline your operations and simplify your processes with automated delivery of confirmations, customer statements, invoices, purchase orders, shipping notices and other transactional applications to both email and fax addresses.

Odyssey's Web Services Gateway:

- Establishes a seamless interface from your business application to our messaging platform.
- Odyssey's Web Services Gateway is designed to be easy to program, test, implement and use, and is fully supported by Odyssey's development team.
- Uses modern, secure, standards-based protocols (SOAP, XML, HTTP, SSL) for communications between your application and Odyssey's platform. These protocols are automatically understood by today's development platforms, so there is usually no need for programmers to learn these protocols to use the interface.
- Can be used within the major operating environments such as Windows, Linux, AIX, etc. using a variety of modern programming languages including C#, VB.Net, Java, PHP, etc.
- Supports auto discovery with sample code available for programmers who use Visual Studio.
- Reflects our System Architecture which simplifies development and integration time for our customers. As a result, it's easier to use and flexible.

Odyssey's state of the art messaging platform provides the features and functionality that will optimize the effectiveness of your business application. Use our expertise, experience, and technology to grow your business now.
